

November 19, 2007

Cy-Fair's Ogwumike signs with Stanford

Cy-Fair basketball star Nneka Ogwumike signed her letter of intent today to play for Stanford University next season. Stanford's a good choice for Ogwumike who values both academics and athletics.

Nneka Ogwumike in her Stanford gear. (Ogwumike family)

She is a stellar student and an accomplished player.

Ogwumike has told me many times that she realizes that there is life after basketball and she wanted to go to school somewhere where she could get a top-notch education.

Ogwumike will make a difference at Stanford.

She could have gone to Tennessee or UConn and won a national championship in her first season, but Ogwumike wanted to go somewhere and make a difference -- she wanted to be somewhere where she could grow as a player.

Posted by Jenny Dial at November 19, 2007 03:28 PM
